The new U.S. hotel openings we're most excited about for 2025

From New York's streets to Colorado's mountains, 2025's most exciting hotel openings span the country and sceneries

Friday December 20 2024

This year's unprecedented travel boom is poised to continue in 2025 as more and more hotels across the country prepare to open their doors to trend-forward travelers. What's more, dozens of new properties are slated to debut all across the map in the year ahead, meaning there are plenty of options for your next vacation. From lavish urban escapes in the heart of New York City (hello, Waldorf Astoria) to glamorous alpine retreats (we're looking at you, White Elephant Aspen) and serene desert hideaways (cue Utah's Black Desert Resort), the year ahead promises a fresh crop of properties that cater to every craving for luxury, adventure, and style. Here's a sneak peek at the most anticipated U.S. hotels opening in 2025 to inspire your future travels.

Exciting new hotel openings for 2025

5. OKANA Resort & Indoor Waterpark | Oklahoma City, OK

Often-overlooked Oklahoma City is getting a brand-new resort and indoor water park to lure in crowds near and far. Set to open this spring, OKANA Resort & Indoor Waterpark will boast an expansive 100,000-square-foot indoor water park with noteworthy features such as 15 slides and a 4.5-acre lagoon, which will be the country's fourth-largest pool. Alternatively, stay dry and lounge by one of the luxe cabanas or lounge chairs set amidst a sandy beach (yes!). Additional highlights include all-suite accommodations—including multi-room and bunk options—a day spa, and 12 drinking and dining options.
